Local Food Production Goals to Be Set Soon

Pickaway county's 1943 food production goals will be formulated at a special meeting of the Ohio USDA War Board sometimes within the next two weeks, John G. Boggs, chairman of the county War Board, declared Wednesday.

It is expected that county goals will parallel, on a smaller scale, the Ohio goals announced by State USDA War Board Chairman Elmer F. Kruse following a special goals conference with Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard at Chicago last week.

The 1943 farm production program calls for increased output of almost all farm commodities, excepting wheat and soybeans.

Buckeye farmers, who shattered many long-standing production records during the last 12 months, are asked to boost still higher their 1943 output of hogs, cattle, sheep, milk, eggs, poultry, corn, barley, Irish potatoes, commercial truck crops, tobacco and hay seed crops.

"The 1943 Food-For-Freedom goals should be studied carefully by every farm family in Pickaway county," Boggs asserted, "in light of the fact that this nation's food production ties in directly with the global strategy of the United Nations."

Needed For War

He warned that unless farmers keep food and fiber production "on the upswing" that the Allies' war machine will receive a "severe setback at a time when all the strength and resources possible will be needed for a victory over the axis."

Ohio's 1943 Food-For-Freedom goals, along the comparative estimates of 1942 production, are:

Hogs: 994,000 sows to farrow in 1943 as compared with an estimated 884,000 in 1942; an approximate 12½ percent increase.

Cattle and Calves: Ten percent increase in 1943 over 1942. Suggested marketing and farm slaughter in 1943 is 1,068,000 head as compared with 973,000 head in 1942 and 953,000 head in 1941.

Congress Passes Peak In War Appropriation; Economy Seen for 1943

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—Chairman Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee today declared that Congress has "passed the peak" in war appropriations and in the new session must cut non-war expenditures to the bone—"and then, if necessary, take part of the bone."

Essential war expenditures, however, must and will not be necessarily reduced, he promised.

The Missouri Democrat's statement came as Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D) Va., said that he would carry his fight for sharp government economies to the new Congress convening next month. Byrd, chairman of the joint congressional economy committee, said that the group would submit recommendations for reductions in non-war expenditures.

Investment Made

Cannon, whose committee approved final appropriations totaling $143,868,000,000 during the last calendar year, said that the nation now has made "its big capital investment" in the war.

"We have provided the facilities and the plants—and we have been very agreeably surprised at the progress made by war industry," Cannon said. "We are producing now at less cost per unit."

"It is natural to suppose that these are non-recurring expenditures and that in the future our appropriations will be primarily for maintenance."

Cannon disclosed that in the last two weeks he has conferred informally with representatives of the armed services, as well as his committee, and predicted that the major requirement in the coming year will be for planes and ships.

Planes, Ships Needed

The emphasis will be on two things—planes and ships—especially planes," he said.

"But we do not expect appropriation bills of the size approved in the last year."

"Essential war expenditures," Cannon continued, "must not be unnecessarily trimmed. As between approving an appropriation too large or too small, we must err on the side of prodigality rather than on the side of penury."

"Although we expect to scrutinize war appropriations more carefully than ever, we are always going to give the benefit of the doubt to war requests. There is too much at stake to take any chance."

Food For All

Wickard said that "it now appears that 1943 will be an all-out year for every phase of our war program" and he forecast that food requirements of both America's armed forces and those of its allies will be "large" and "likely will grow as the war progresses."

The agriculture secretary also observed that American farm production "must anticipate the possible freeing of subjugated nations and the feeding of peoples whose larders have been stripped bare by the Nazis."

"Since we must first meet the requirements of our fighting forces and of our allies," Wickard asserted, "some foods will be available for civilians in lesser amounts than normal, and we will not have the great variety of foods we have always enjoyed."

Food For All

"For example, meat will be available in reasonable amounts, but not in the quantities civilians would like to buy it."

"There will be less canned fruits and vegetables, and smaller amounts of some dairy products."

"But, in the main, our civilian population can count on a food supply that will meet adequate nutrition standards."

Company officials said the strike, which was not authorized by the union, had delayed the opening of a new vein in the Black Star mine which normally produces 4,000 tons daily.

COAL MINERS TO MAKE UP TIME LOST IN STRIKE

HARLAN, Ky., Dec. 10—With the first shift already back in the mines, the remaining two shifts of the 1,000 miners who walked out of the Black Star Coal company mines early yesterday were ready to return to work today.

In voting to call off the strike the union agreed to put in extra work Saturday afternoon to make up time lost in the one-day shutdown over a change of bosses. Robert L. Hodge, field representative of Union Mine Workers, declared.

Professor Fichter, elected late yesterday for a two-year term, succeeds Paul McNish of Chardon, who filled the unexpired term of Walter Kirk, killed in an auto accident.

We estimated there were about 800 dead ones at the bottom of the hill when the fight was over. We got 'em with light machine guns, automatic rifles, but mostly with grenades. Yes, I guess I got a few of 'em.

But Paul McNish might do well to read it... and build his manpower program around it.

Thought for the day: No lost generation please.

JOSEPH W. FICHTER TO HEAD GRANGE OF OHIO

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 10—Prof. Joseph W. Fichter of Miami university, Oxford, O., today was installed as master of the Ohio State Grange for the next two years at final sessions of the organization's 70th annual convention.

Professor Fichter, elected late yesterday for a two-year term, succeeds Paul McNish of Chardon, who filled the unexpired term of Walter Kirk, killed in an auto accident.

Russian forces forged ahead on the eastern front, but their progress was slowed somewhat by increased Nazi resistance. The Germans have brought up reinforcements to strategic points by air, and were reported counter-attacking on some sectors.

DRAFT BOARD LEARNS OF THREE ENLISTMENTS

Notices of three more enlistments in various branches of service were received Thursday by the Pickaway county draft board, all of the youths enlisting having signed necessary papers prior to the ban on enlistments announced last Saturday evening by President Roosevelt.

Included were Robert G. Brown, East High street, a student at Tusculum college, Tenn., who has enlisted in the army reserve at Nashville; Otto Frederick Gunther, (Bus Palm), 445 East Main street, in the merchant marine at Cincinnati, and Everett C. Soviet communiques said all attacks were smashed and that Red forces continued to advance on both the Stalingrad and Moscow fronts, although at an admittedly slower pace. But the Russians held the initiative everywhere and were on the offensive along the 800-mile line from Stalingrad to Velikiye Luki.

COCHRAN HEADS COUNTY'S BOY SCOUT ACTIVITY

Norbert Cochran, general manager of the Container Corporation of America plant, took charge of Boy Scout activities in Pickaway county for the next year Wednesday evening at the annual district meeting conducted in First Presbyterian church. Mr. Cochran will fill the vacancy left by induction of William D. Radcliff into the army. The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey had been serving temporarily as district chairman pending the election.

Other committee heads were named at the meeting by a nominating group headed by Dan McClain. Various chairmen include E. C. Ebert, scout advancement; Harold Limbach, finance; Leonard Snodgrass, extension of organization; Harold J. Costlow, New Holland; E. A. Gower, Kingston, and John W. Eshelman, members-at-large of district committee; Tom Armstrong, camping and other scout activities; Richard Williamson, scouts in war service, and Virgil Cress, scout training. Each of the men appointed has accepted his assignment.

Announcement of the official staff highlighted a meeting for scouts and scouter which followed a potluck supper. Scouts of Troops 205 of the Presbyterian church and 211 of Emmitt's Chapel divided table decoration honors. The Rev. Fred Mark of Emmitt's chapel pronounced the invocation.

Addressess were made by L. R. Bucher, Columbus, scout commissioner for the central Ohio Area Council, who urged the boys present to strive toward rank of eagle scouts, declaring that the nation needs more boys with eagle scout training, and H. B. Knepper, Cincinnati, regional official who declared that scouts should invest today for tomorrow's dividends, stressing the value of promotion of Boy Scout work.

Earl McVey, field executive in charge of Pickaway county, discussed briefly plans made for extension of Boy Scout work in the county area.

Several songs, including the Scout Leaders' Prayer, concluded the meeting.

Boy Scout work for the next 12 months will be financed by the Community Chest, the county's $600 contribution to the Area Council's operation already having been made.

COLUMBUS MAN FINED

William G. Martin of Columbus was fined $10 and costs Thursday by Justice of the Peace B. T. Hedges after he was arrested by Highway Patrolman H. G. Ramsey for failing to observe a stop sign at Routes 104 and 56. Martin admitted guilt and paid his fine.

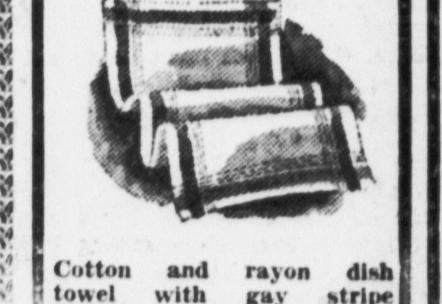

There are many farmers in the army who would undoubtedly have been entitled to occupational deferment had the present policy been in force prior to their induction. The board pointed out that this is a matter over which the local board had no control. The Pickaway county unit must abide by regulations and govern deferrals accordingly.

Many farmers and farm hands, the board said, "who had previously been granted a short deferment by the board to complete this year's crop will now be entitled to indefinite occupational deferment and placed in class 2-C under new orders."

A man leaving the farm also must keep in mind that he gives up his draft deferment classification when he quits the job, and is subject to induction into the army.

With the prospect of using the help of school children, there arose the question of changing the school term. In Kentucky now the term runs from November to July, so that the children are available for harvesting season.

Many Kentucky farmers may be among those transferred to other parts of the country, since many of them are in tobacco production and this product is considered non-essential.

KATONA JUROR INDICTED AS FALSE WITNESS

COLUMBUS, O. Dec. 10—Robert Katona, lone male member of the jury in the embezzlement trial of Joseph E. Katona, deposed city superintendent of parks and forestry, stood indicted today by the Franklin County grand jury on a charge of testifying falsely before a jury commissioner.

According to County Prosecutor Ralph Bartlett the 69-year-old retired salesman told Jury Commissioner Frank Zimpfer that he had never been convicted of a crime, while undergoing questioning for jury service. Police records show he has been convicted eight times of numbers writing.

Bartlett had held out against eleven women for 24 hours for the acquittal of Katona of a charge of embezzling $1,111 by padding city pay rolls. The indictment, according to Bartlett, provides a fine of not more than $200 or a six-months sentence or both.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep it clean. When you get tired and don't work right in the daytime many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with the kidneys.

When disorder of kidneys function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause headaches, rheumatism, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

DAN BOWLING ADMITS THEFT AT KORN HOME

Sheriff William Icenhower of Fayette county said Thursday that Dan Bowling, arrested Tuesday evening in Darby township, had admitted a larceny charge.

Icenhower declared that Bowling had broken into the home of Lewis Korn, his brother-in-law, on the Jeffersonville road. He took a shotgun, coat, some money and other articles, totaling $33 in value, according to the officer. The loot was sold to a Kentuckian, Bowling is quoted as saying.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent urination, backache, pain in the kidney, sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disease invades the kidney, a poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatism, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and drowsiness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poison waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

County May Assist In Saving Soldiers' Lives

Probability that Circleville and Pickaway county folk will be asked to donate blood to help the Red Cross build its great blood bank for Uncle Sam's men in service was expressed Thursday by Carl C. Leist, Pickaway county Red Cross chairman, following a meeting of his executive committee with John Wenrick, Red Cross field executive.

Mr. Leist said that the decision concerning the county's role in the undertaking must be made before December 15.

Under the Red Cross program a mobile unit would be sent to Circleville for two days in January or February. A staff of nine persons, including physicians and nurses, would be assigned here to conduct the work.

The Red Cross chairman pointed out that the mobile unit will not be assigned here unless at least 240 persons are registered for blood donations. The unit must collect 80 pints of blood daily, taking donations from five persons every 15 minutes. Jars will be filled and sent to Columbus and from there to a processing plant where it will be made into plasma to be sent overseas and wherever American soldiers are stationed.

The blood plasma has played an important role so far in the war, and is credited by army men with saving lives of countless men who have been wounded.

A check of Civilian Defense Council applications shows that 92 persons registered have volunteered to give blood. Many persons said they would not be willing, while many others did not mark their papers either way. Defense Council officials believe it would be an easy task to sign up 240 persons willing to donate a pint of blood to the war cause.

No steps were taken by the Red Cross executives to bring the mobile unit, Mr. Leist pointing out that a chairman for the blood bank organization would be necessary and that a registrar must also be appointed. However, he anticipates favorable action.

BLOCK CAPTAINS LEARN ROLES AS WAR WORKERS

Mrs. Eva B. Shulze Outlines Program At Meet Of 100 Women

FIRST TASK ASSIGNED

Share-The-Meat Program To Be Outlined To All Housewives

Block captains operating under the Circleville Civilian Defense Council swung into action Thursday to do their part for Uncle Sam in his war effort.

Nearly 100 Circleville women, enrolled by sector leaders designated by Mrs. Eva B. Shulze, director of the Civilian Defense Council's women's activities' unit, met in the recreation center of St. Joseph's Catholic church Wednesday evening to learn the first role they are to play in the government's program. The block leaders will serve as contacts between the Civilian Defense Council and housewives of the city, being assigned to disseminate information provided by Uncle Sam and his various war-time agencies.

18 City Sectors

The block leaders are operating as aides to 18 sector leaders, the city being divided into 18 parts. Mrs. Shulze informed the group Wednesday evening that there would be no more meetings for the entire group, all information from now on going to the sector leaders and being distributed by them to the block leaders.

First assignment for the block leaders is distribution of information concerning the government's important share-the-meat program. Pamphlets have already been received covering the share-the-meat task, and these were put in hands of the block leaders at the Wednesday meeting.

Each leader is instructed to start her work immediately and to have her assignment completed before Christmas. The block captains are told that they need to offer no apologies to any one for making a personal house-to-house call, their work being considered by the government as essential to the war effort.

Use Less Meat

Each person is being urged to limit his use of meat to two and one-half pounds each week. The pamphlets to be distributed explain how this can be done with ease.

Block leaders are to converse with each housewife in her block, explaining the government's program and urging cooperation. Placards showing participation will be provided for homes which are doing their part in the war effort. The placards will be distributed by air raid wardens on recommendation of the block leaders.

After the share-the-meat project is completed, the block leaders were informed, other undertakings will be assigned to them. For the present, the share the meat program is the only one to be considered.

STATE GROUP PUTS OKEH ON COUNTY FAIRS

So far as the Ohio Fair Managers' association is concerned Circleville's annual Pumpkin Show can be conducted next Fall. The big festival was dispensed with last October when directors of the Pickaway County Agricultural Society decided they could better help the war effort by giving their attention to other matters than the Pumpkin Show.

Fair managers association executive committee met this week in Columbus and voted unanimously for a full county fair program this year, meaning that the association will sanction all events conducted in all Ohio counties.

Events held in 1942 were successful financially. Fifty fairs were held last Fall, 42 being cancelled after ODT Chief Joseph Eastman urged discontinuance to save tires.

Resolution giving the county organizations the go ahead sign was issued by Myers Y. Cooper, former governor and one of the founders of the Ohio Fair Managers' association. Mr. Cooper wrote that "1942 Ohio fairs had sustained the effort in such important matters as encouragement of increased farm and livestock production."

Ohio's state fair was abandoned in 1942 when the army took over the fairgrounds for an air force training school. It is likely there will be no state fair for the duration.

Pickaway County Agricultural Society will conduct its organization meeting sometime after the first of the year. Directors were chosen by ballot last week, Eldred Cayce and Russell Palm being put on the board replacing Dr. B. R. Bales and Arthur Johnson. Directors reelected were R. G. Colville, Fred Moeller and Herman Hill.

SECOND COURSE IN DEFENSE IS GIVEN BY HENRY

Circleville schools' upper five grades were given their second course in Civilian Defense work Thursday when J. Wray Henry, high school principal who is especially trained in work of the Office of Civilian Defense, called the classes together. Last week Mr. Henry discussed the need for Civilian Defense training and this week he carried the program farther by explaining some of the method used in protecting homes and property.

Whether Thursday's discussion will be the last for the pupils is not known, Mr. Henry intending to make the lesson as comprehensive as possible. It is possible though that additional phases of the important work will be discussed at a later date.

School pupils recently were tested concerning the amount of time required to reach their homes, and Mr. Henry said another test will be conducted soon.

Pupils of the five upper grades enjoyed motion pictures Tuesday of Ohio State university, the movies showing the university's program in connection with the war effort. Classrooms, laboratories, artillery school and numerous other parts of the school were explained to the pupils.

FARM COURSES PRESENTED AT WALNUT SCHOOL

Kenneth L. Holtrey, instructor of vocational agriculture in the Walnut township school, has started a series of farm short courses for adults at his school, the first meeting of which was conducted this week when organization plans were discussed.

The courses are set up on a weekly schedule. Each Monday evening two courses are offered at Walnut school, one a combination of milk production and swine production and the other a course in food nutrition and sewing, the latter under direction of Miss Mary Walburn, Walnut's home economics instructor.

Each Wednesday evening a course in milk and swine production will be conducted at Madison township school, and each Thursday a farm machinery course will be given at Walnut school.

The correspondence on these things is terrific. It shows that Mr. Jones, good, honest, conservative banker, just didn't have a mind geared for war. He was thinking about freight rates and safe investments, and there just isn't anything safe about war.

So finally, Roosevelt issued his order of April 13, requiring Jones' Reconstruction Finance Corporation to lend the money for South American rubber, and making it mandatory on Jesse to negotiate the loan on the order of Wallace's and Perkins' BEW.

JESSE GETS SARCASTIC

After that order was signed, Jesse invited his friend from Houston to lunch and turned on the old Texas charm.

"Look here," he said, "we both come from the same town. I'm sure we can understand each other. I've been getting an awful ribbing from the newspaper columnists."

Milo Perkins softened, but when Jesse countered with the suggestion that Perkins would want to continue letting the RFC purchase rubber, tin, etc., without too much BEW supervision, the fight started. Jesse cajoled, argued, stormed. Perkins' opinion of him went up. Jesse was certainly a man who knew what he wanted and went after it. But Perkins wouldn't budge from the powers given him by Roosevelt. Finally, Jesse resorted to sarcasm.

"Or what kind of food do you feed?" he asked, "that you're so much more important than Donald Nelson? He doesn't demand the right to inspect everything we're doing?"

"The situation is entirely different," replied Perkins. "I'm charged with getting 40 to 50 basic materials without which this war can't be run and I'm going to get 'em."

"All right," countered Jesse, "you come over here at 1 p.m. and sit in on these meetings and you'll be here till midnight. You can't afford to spend all that time."

"No," replied Perkins, "but what do you think I hire experts for?"

"Well, I sit in on these conferences," said Jesse.

"I'm not as good as you," countered Perkins. "I don't pretend to know the details regarding chrome or nickel or tungsten. That's why I hire experts to handle them. We'd never get anywhere if I tried to handle them myself."

GEORGIANS WILL BE FAVORITES IN BOWL JOUST

Regardless Of What Team Comes Through Saturday, Sinkwich Co. Liked

BY LAWTON CARVER
NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—The University of Georgia will be about a 5 to 1 favorite to win in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day regardless of which team the southerners are called on to face—Southern California or U. C. L. A. The odds look crazy, but that's the kind of football season this has been and may continue to be right on through the post season games.

Georgia's opponents will be determined on the coming Saturday, when Southern California and U. C. L. A. tangle up at Los Angeles for the coast conference title and automatic entry into the Pasadena classic. For this one, U. S. C. is a 6 to 5 favorite, or, actually, the game is virtually a tossup. U. C. L. A. probably will win it, and then may go ahead and beat Georgia, which can be had as Auburn proved at a time when Georgia looked like the hottest thing off or on wheels.

However, it's about time the invaders of the West did something about that bowl situation out there on the coast. The West, which means the Pacific coast conference, has won 13 times, lost only eight and tied three. Moreover, the West has won the last four in a row. In 1938 California took Alabama, 13 to 0, then Southern California beat Duke 7 to 3 and Tennessee 14 to 0 in the next two years and Stanford knocked off Nebraska, 21 to 13, last New Year's Day.

Filled With Upsets

This oldest of all the bowl classics—dating back as it does to 1916—has been one studded with upsets, as a further indication that a Georgia win is not exactly a foregone conclusion.

The way the campaign has gone on the coast this year, with most of the teams trundling along like so many in-and-outers, has built up possibilities for one of the greatest upsets of all time. The coast conference winner will be on edge for the windup tussle and will be waiting out there for the opposition.

The latter might have cooled out a little since the season close and will have to top that off by travelling all the way across country to get to the scene of action. The question thus seems to be whether Coach Wally Butts can get the Georgians "up" for this one, and this will be especially vexing if the Georgians have decided that the game already is won.

The Georgians eleven has been rated as the standout, one of its players, Franklin Sinkwich, has been picked as the outstanding football player of the year. Coach Butts will be rated among the coaches of the year, if not the No. 1 man in this respect, and this makes to order a situation for what would be classed as an upset.

TRAINER'S HUNCH RIGHT; HORSE FALLS, IS KILLED

BAY MEADOWS, Cal., Dec. 10.—Like the boy who plunk down $2 on some platter, horsemen themselves get strange hunches, and Trainer Earl Kelley today sure wished he had played his hunch straight.

Kelley, who trains for C. Le Roy King of Memphis, Tenn., had a strange premonition yesterday when Dr. M. J. O'Rourke, track veterinarian for Bay Meadows, examined his horse Memphis.

"Look him over good," Kelley pleaded with O'Rourke.

O'Rourke pronounced the horse in good health. Still Kelley was not satisfied.

"It's an awful rough track and I have a feeling that I should scratch the horse," Kelley said gloomily.

Memphis went into the race, with Kelley mournfully watching over the track fence. Racing far out in front, the horse fell, broke his ankle bone in two and had to be destroyed.

WASHINGTON, LEE ELEVEN FOLDING FOR DURATION

LEXINGTON, Va., Dec. 10.—Intercollegiate football at Washington and Lee university today was added to the list of war injuries.

Dean Frank J. Gilliam announced that football at the university has been suspended "for the duration of the war emergency." Other intercollegiate sports, so far as possible, will be continued under an intensified program of physical education "where they can be conducted on a simplified basis in keeping with the main objectives of the program," Dean Gilliam said.

The generals' 1943 football schedule has not been released, but games had been booked with West Virginia, Army, Richmond, Virginia Tech, Virginia, William and Mary and Maryland.

New Yorkers Mourning Death of Jack Doyle

BY JACK MAHON

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—The sports mob along Broadway was sad today for one of its most familiar and beloved characters, century, had been the No. 1 oddsmaker of the nation.

Along West 49th street, that famous cement strip known as Jacobs Beach; along the main stem itself and in the taverns of the town, the betting mob remissed of the colorful, genial gentleman, who, for almost half a century, had been the No. 1 oddsmaker of the nation.

They recalled the career of this famous sportsman; his start as a wide-eyed youth around New England sports events; his migration to the big town in 1899 and his adoption of Broadway where he squatted, set up shop and existed until his death Tuesday in Jacksonville, Fla.

Broadway Jack, as he was known, succumbed to a heart ailment with which he was bothered for several years when en route from Miami to De Funak Springs, Fla., where he has spent the winter in recent years.

At 66 he left behind him a full life, colored with sports, national personalities and thrills and a reputation as one of the most brilliant and accurate analysts of public opinion on current events in the big town has ever known.

These are the tales they were telling today. They recalled Jack Doyle's start as a sportsman. Too many years ago for even the late Broadway Jack, himself, to recall, went to a racetrack and watched the scurrying mob rush to place bets on a famous three horse event of that era.

Two famous colts were entered, the other was an unknown nag that was entered just to flash its owner's colors in high class company. Young Doyle noticed the bookies had 100-1 written opposite this plug's name on their slate. He asked what this meant and a good-natured odds-layer explained.

SPORTS WORLD GOES TO WAR

Baseball Leagues, And Now Big Ten Show Importance Of Great Struggle

BY H. C. WARREN

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Any doubts that sports have gone to war on a big scale were erased today in the wake of two of the biggest sports meetings in the country—the major and minor baseball leagues and the Western Conference athletic authorities.

The baseball men took over the stage last week and after five days of discussion put over one lone deal of any consequence, Eddie Miller of the Boston Braves going to the Cincinnati Reds in exchange for Eddie Joost, Pitcher Nate Andrews and a chunk of cash.

The conference already was on record for cooperation with the service teams in scheduling football games, and it was believed most of the schools would schedule a tenth game with teams representing the armed forces.

ANOTHER SIEGE

HITLER clearly does not profit from his history. Had he studied carefully not merely Napoleon's Russian campaign, but his years of war in Spain, he would not have got into his present difficulties. And when he planned to take Stalingrad, he certainly overlooked the story of the siege of Saragossa.

This Spanish city was the key to the people's resistance against Napoleon. The emperor ordered it to be taken at all costs. In this one point Hitler imitated his predecessor. Lannes, the French commander, called on Saragossa to surrender like Madrid. The leader of the besieged replied, "If Madrid has surrendered, Madrid has been sold. Saragossa will neither be sold nor surrender."

Then followed day after day like those before Stalingrad. Slow advance street by street, and house by house, with the defenders hurling down every conceivable missile from the housetops, and burning the buildings that could not be held. Lannes finally had to destroy the city methodically by mines and artillery, even as Hitler for a time promised to do at Stalingrad.

In the end Saragossa fell, the ranks of its defenders reduced from 50,000 to 15,000. Its siege had lasted two months. More time than that has gone by at Stalingrad, and the German chances are not so good as they were a month ago. Saragossa bled the French forces nearly to death. German homes shudder at the name of Stalingrad.

SMASHING ITALY

AMERICAN bombs over southern Italy have almost blown the heel off the Italian boot. One of these days they may be blowing the top off Vesuvius and letting out the lava, to flow over Naples. Something of that kind might be done, repeating the famous destruction of Pompeii and Herculaneum in the year 79 A. D. But for all practical purposes, American bombers could do the Naples job without calling on a volcano for help.

Poor old Italy is certainly in a pitiful situation. The fascism that Mussolini imposed on them, when they were helpless in a big depression, has been a terrible curse. They would rise up now and kick their dictator into the sea, except for the strong German forces with which Hitler has garrisoned the Italian "boot." Their only friends are the British and Americans, who for strategic reasons are now—if the appropriate phrase may be produced—shooting hell out of them.

To this sad state has sunk "that sunny land, where the orange trees bloom." It deserves pity, not hate. With Mussolini "purged" and free choice restored, Italians would rush to join the Allies.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON

DAVID-GOLIATH FEUD RAGES

WASHINGTON — This is the story of two boys from Houston, Texas, who came to Washington to occupy two vital positions in the Government. It is also the story of a David and Goliath feud between them which has influenced armies and the question of whether 130,000,000 Americans walk or ride.

"Goliath" Jesse Jones—banker, newspaper publisher — came to Washington, eventually to lend more money to more companies than any other man in the history of the world.

"David" Milo Perkins, a young bag salesman — came to Washington, eventually to challenge the lending authority of Jesse.

The battle between them came to a head last week when Secretary of Commerce Jones testified secretly before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee asking for a Senate amendment which would override a White House order giving his rival from Houston final power to buy rubber, quinine, tin and other strategic war materials.

Eight months earlier, the President had arbitrated the first battle between David and Goliath and ruled in favor of David's Board of Economic Warfare. So now Jesse is trying to get Congress, particularly Senate Republicans, to go over the President's head.

JESSE WOOS MILO

Actually the two boys from Houston don't dislike each other. And when Milo Perkins heard that Jesse had testified before a secret session of the Senate Committee, he telephoned Jesse and asked for a copy of his testimony.

"What?" said the Secretary of Commerce. "Are you going up there to testify with all that enthusiasm of yours?"

"Of course," said the executive of the Board of Economic Warfare, "and you can't tell what I might have to say when I get up there."

Whereupon Jesse invited Milo to lunch and proceeded to turn on the charm. Jesse Jones can be extremely charming, and he wooed Milo as a second lieutenant woos a debutante, to get back his old power to buy rubber, tin, quinine and other war materials, which the President last April gave to his rival from Houston.

DELAYS ON RUBBER

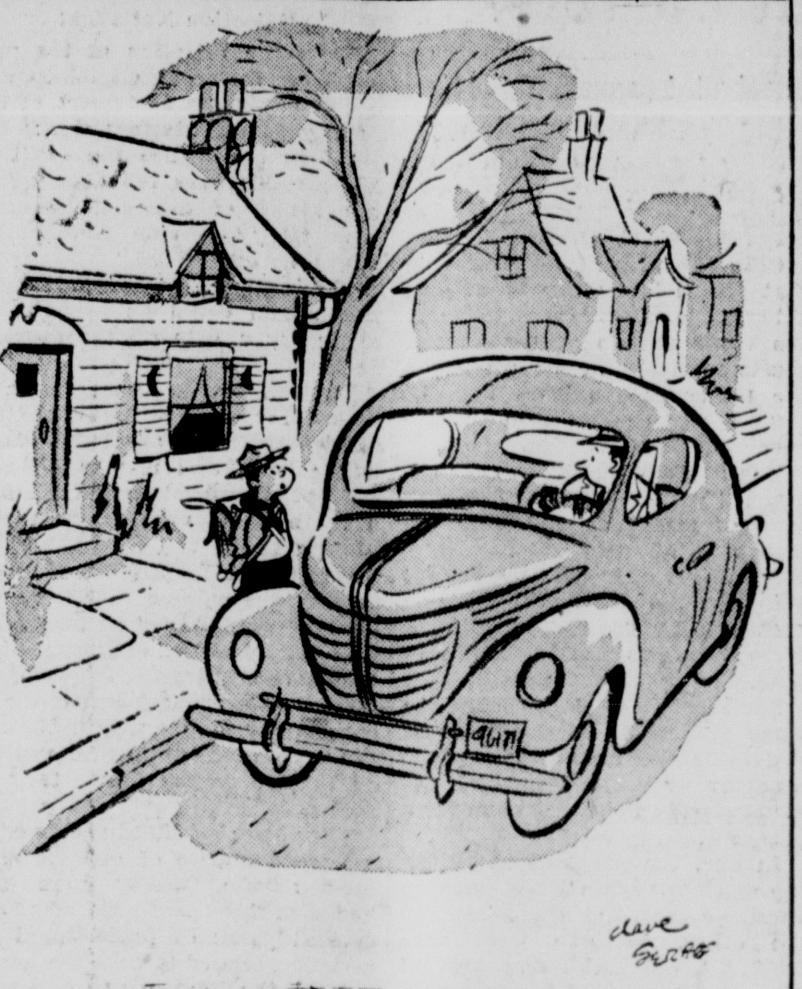

Actually, a much more important principle is at stake in this argument than the personal prestige of two gentlemen from Texas. It is vitally important to every member of the armed forces, and every civilian left behind them.

It dates back to last Winter, when on April 13, four months after Pearl Harbor, Jesse Jones, entrusted with buying rubber from the Amazon had only about six men in all South America. During this period between December 7 and April 13, Vice President Wallace—Perkins' boss—made perhaps 40 trips to the White House urging the purchase of Brazilian rubber and other strategic raw materials.

There were perhaps 17 different meetings on quinine which the army wanted so badly from the Dutch East Indies. Jones called meeting after meeting. Some of this vital medicine was purchased, but the big order to buy was cabled just one day

Tuberculosis in Old People Often May Spread Contagion

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE MODERN program for eliminating tuberculosis is based to a certain extent on a somewhat cruel fact. Tuberculosis workers don't create the fact, but they are likely to be blamed when they put it into application. I refer, of course, to the fact that we believe that tuberculosis is spread from one human being to another and that in order to protect a family, the patient with tuberculosis in a household must be detected and removed from contact with children.

However, if we are going to eliminate tuberculosis from the world it is going to have to be done by case finding. I believe within 50 years I could reduce the incidence of tuberculosis almost to zero if I had the police power to go from house to house every place in the land and make examinations of everybody living there and remove the ones with tuberculosis to a sanatorium so that they would not be in contact with the others.

To a considerable extent we are doing this at the present time and the thoroughness with which it is done is shown in the decline in the incidence of tuberculosis. It is no pleasant job to remove fathers or mothers from their children and have them segregated so that they very seldom see the children, but it must be remembered that tuberculosis begins in childhood and is the result of contact with another human being who already has it.

Chronic Tuberculosis

In this connection it is astonishing to find how many people past middle age have chronic tuberculosis. We think of tuberculosis as occurring in young people and of being cured or healed, or of carrying the individual off before he has arrived at the age of 50. However, this is not true. In some people it becomes an extremely chronic disease and people may have active tuberculosis and be able to breathe out tuberculosis germs until even a ripe old age.

Most of these people have no idea that they have tuberculosis; they know they have a chronic cough and call it chronic bronchitis. It is sort of natural to have grandmother and grandfather take care of the baby while mother and father are out some Saturday or Sunday afternoon, and this close contact may be the cause of active tuberculosis in a child.

In a routine examination of 3,000 patients at the Philadelphia General Hospital it was found that 25 per cent had tuberculosis of the lungs; 1,000 of these patients were over 60 years of age and in this group 28 per cent were found to have tuberculosis of the lungs and were capable of spreading it to other human beings.

In a careful study of 136 such patients it was found that 80 knew of a family history of tuberculosis; 24 per cent knew of tuberculosis in their parents and 35 per cent knew of tuberculosis among their children or grandchildren. This is a sufficiently startling set of statistics to make us realize the prevalence of tuberculosis in those of middle age or over.

The symptoms which these patients had and which should make one suspicious are as follows: About three-fourths of the patients had a cough; nearly the same number were subject to colds; 1 per cent had pleurisy; 10 per cent complained of weakness; a small percentage had night sweats and nervousness and a fair percentage complained of dyspepsia.

After eight years in office, J. Sherman Hoover resigned as justice of the peace of Harrison township to become effective at once. He said that his butchering business required so much of his time that he could not do justice to both.

Disposal plant bond issue vote was delayed by councilmen at a meeting attended by more than 50 interested citizens.

Miss Jemima Duncan, East Mill street, Democratic committee woman for the 11th district, announced that she was not a candidate for the postmastership of Circleville.

25 YEARS AGO

Captain E. S. Adams, adjutant at the Columbus barracks, reported that 1,500 recruits presented themselves for enlistment in one day.

Zero weather prevailing at Camp Sherman kept Ohio and western Pennsylvania selectees indoors for several days except for a one-hour hike. Urgent calls for helmets, scarfs and wristlets were sent to Red Cross chapters in nearby cities.

The extreme cold weather caused schools of the county to close, teachers and pupils being unable to reach the buildings that for the most part were heated only with oil stoves.

Embattled Love

BY LORENA CARLETON

SYNOPSIS

A chance meeting in the San Francisco fog leads to spur-of-the-moment marriage in Reno by Paige Sheldon, whose sweetheart has just been killed fighting for the Allies, and Restwick (rusty) Carnes III, wealthy descendant of early Hawaiian settlers. Rusty marries to spite the girl he thinks he loves, Eugenia North, his selfish fiance.

YESTERDAY: Rusty's angry protests when the ship's captain asks to examine Paige's purse during the investigation of the jewel robbery over with?

"Be a little more patient, Mr. Carnes," said the investigator who was holding Paige's gray bag.

"And a little more quiet!" thud-

"Why?" yelled Restwick Carnes.

"So you can see all the shouting yourself?" He leaned against the wall and fixed the ship's chief with a scornful gaze. "You'd better be attending to your rowboat. It's just sitting in the breakwater mooring like a cow, which you'll have to admit is pretty silly."

"You are so smart," replied Captain Berriman with tight little grin, "you'll know a pea-soup fog has closed in on us. And a pea-soup fog can make a lot of trouble."

After a short interval of silence, Restwick Carnes said, "Yes, you're right, Captain Berriman. A fog can make a lot of trouble."

That remark lifted Paige's head. She stared at him and suddenly her face was not white. It was flushed and furious. She thought, "I should do what I've been sitting here thinking about while two grown men have yelled at each other like children. I should do it and let Rusty learn exactly what sort of a girl she is." But, instantly she knew she could not do it. The unalterable fact remained. Eugenia was his love and Paige was in a position to spare his knowledge that his love had been guilty of a sneaking trick. "The only thing for me," Paige decided with spirit, "is to be eternally ashamed that I ever held an infinitesimal thought about the man."

Rustic tightened his hands to keep from trembling. "Gentlemen, what do you want explained?"

"All my purses are made that same way," the girl answered in a voice verging on sarcasm, as if the remark had been a compliment, rather than a left-handed accusation.

Captain Berriman looked toward the two investigators apparently hoping to learn from them the reason for the abrupt change in the girl's behavior. The odd smile barely curving her lips insinuated something more than a mere bluff. The captain opened his mouth to speak, but changed his mind. He walked away from the girl and seated himself back of his desk once more. From there he made an appealing gesture toward one of the federal agents who tapped the gray-suede purse and eyed Paige shrewdly.

"This is rather cleverly constructed."

"All my purses are made that same way," her tone was light, almost flippant.

The captain murmured, "That's quite a collection, Mrs. Carnes."

His voice was uncomfortably perturbed.

"Thank you," the girl answered in a voice verging on sarcasm, as if the remark had been a compliment, rather than a left-handed accusation.

ANOTHER SIEGE

HITLER clearly does not profit from his history. Had he studied carefully not merely Napoleon's Russian campaign, but his years of war in Spain, he would not have got into his present difficulties. And when he planned to take Stalingrad, he certainly overlooked the story of the siege of Saragossa.

This Spanish city was the key to the people's resistance against Napoleon. The emperor ordered it to be taken at all costs. In this one point Hitler imitated his predecessor. Lannes, the French commander, called on Saragossa to surrender like Madrid. The leader of the besieged replied, "If Madrid has surrendered, Madrid has been sold. Saragossa will neither be sold nor surrender."

Then followed day after day like those before Stalingrad. Slow advance street by street, and house by house, with the defenders hurling down every conceivable missile from the housetops, and burning the buildings that could not be held. Lannes finally had to destroy the city methodically by mines and artillery, even as Hitler for a time promised to do at Stalingrad.

In the end Saragossa fell, the ranks of its defenders reduced from 50,000 to 15,000. Its siege had lasted two months. More time than that has gone by at Stalingrad, and the German chances are not so good as they were a month ago. Saragossa bled the French forces nearly to death. German homes shudder at the name of Stalingrad.

SMASHING ITALY

A MERICAN bombs over southern Italy have almost blown the heel off the Italian boot. One of these days they may be blowing the top off Vesuvius and letting out the lava, to flow over Naples. Something of that kind might be done, repeating the famous destruction of Pompeii and Herculaneum in the year 79 A. D. But for all practical purposes, American bombers could do the Naples job without calling on a volcano for help.

Poor old Italy is certainly in a pitiful situation. The fascism that Mussolini imposed on them, when they were helpless in a big depression, has been a terrible curse. They would rise up now and kick their dictator into the sea, except for the strong German forces with which Hitler has garrisoned the Italian "boot." Their only friends are the British and Americans, who for strategic reasons are now—if the appropriate phrase may be produced—shooting hell out of them.

To this sad state has sunk "that sunny land, where the orange trees bloom." It deserves pity, not hate. With Mussolini "purged" and free choice restored, Italians would rush to join the Allies.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

DAVID-GOLIATH FEUD RAGES

WASHINGTON — This is the story of two boys from Houston, Texas, who came to Washington to occupy two vital positions in the Government. It is also the story of a David and Goliath feud between them which has influenced armies and the question of whether 130,000,000 Americans walk or ride.

"Goliath" Jesse Jones—banker, newspaper publisher—came to Washington, eventually to lend more money to more companies than any other man in the history of the world.

"David" Milo Perkins, a young bag salesman—came to Washington, eventually to challenge the lending authority of Jesse.

The battle between them came to a head last week when Secretary of Commerce Jones testified secretly before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee asking for a Senate amendment which would override a White House order giving his rival from Houston final power to buy rubber, quinine, tin and other strategic war materials.

Eight months earlier, the President had arbitrated the first battle between David and Goliath and ruled in favor of David's Board of Economic Warfare. So now Jesse is trying to get Congress, particularly Senate Republicans, to go over the President's head.

JESSE WOOS MILO

Actually the two boys from Houston don't dislike each other. And when Milo Perkins heard that Jesse had testified before a secret session of the Senate Committee, he telephoned Jesse and asked for a copy of his testimony.

"What?" said the Secretary of Commerce, "Are you going up there to testify with all that enthusiasm of yours?"

"Of course," said the executive of the Board of Economic Warfare, "and you can't tell what I might have to say when I get up there."

Whereupon Jesse invited Milo to lunch and proceeded to turn on the charm. Jesse Jones can be extremely charming, and he wooed Milo as a second lieutenant woos a debutante, to get back his old power to buy rubber, tin, quinine and other war materials, which the President last April gave to his rival from Houston.

DELAYS ON RUBBER

Actually, a much more important principle is at stake in this argument than the personal prestige of two gentlemen from Texas. It is vitally important to every member of the armed forces, and every civilian left behind them.

It dates back to last Winter, when on April 13, four months after Pear Harbor, Jesse Jones, entrusted with buying rubber from the Amazon had only about six men in all South America. During this period between December 7 and April 13, Vice President Wallace—Perkins' boss—made perhaps 40 trips to the White House urging the purchase of Brazilian rubber and other strategic raw materials.

There were perhaps 17 different meetings on quinine which the army wanted so badly from the Dutch East Indies. Jones called meeting after meeting. Some of this vital medicine was purchased, but the big order to buy was cabled just one day

WORLD AT A GLANCE . . .

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

WASHINGTON.—Hans Habe, predicting in a prominent December magazine, that Herr Hitler shortly will launch a "blitz" campaign for a negotiated compromise peace, is doing only his own personal guessing, of course.

It isn't likely that Prophet Habe can read the Fuehrer's mind from away over on this side of the Atlantic. It also is evident that Adolf didn't reveal his plan to him accidentally, hoping for a favorable advance notice, because this notice distinctly is otherwise.

The whole article's a warning to the United Nations that the only safe way to negotiate with the Nazis is to lick 'em flat.

Nevertheless, it's obvious that Brother Habe (I hesitate to refer to him as "Herr" Habe just now) has been a close student of the situation, and it's probable that a commentator whose name begins with "Hans" is exceptionally qualified to draw conclusions relative to Teutonic scheming.

Parenthetically, here we have it again—

ALL Germans shouldn't be condemned on account of Herr Hitler.

Some of 'em are all right.

And, if Comrade Habe is correct, it appears that this latter kind are the folk who, in his own dooryard, are helping to scare Adolf into making the best terms he can get without going on to the finish he originally had scheduled.

Hans wasn't needed to inform the rest of the civilized world of anti-Hitler sentiment throughout the areas previously conquered by Berlin's forces. Those regions' sizings have been no news any of the time, but they've needed some internal heat to stimulate 'em.

Hans thinks it's being generated, and there are hints that it really is starting to manifest itself.

Then Germany's Italian support began to peter out.

It never had amounted to much. Finally it fizzled to a point where, as of the present juncture, the Nazis are reported to be fortifying their border anti-Fascistically.

Fortifying AGAINST 'em is going some.

The Japs are pro-Jap exclusively. Now it starts to transpire that the German military class is anti-Hitler.

Adolf himself doesn't belong to it. It's an aristocratic bunch and he's a plebian.

If his internal organization is threatened with going fooley, where does he get off?

The Fuehrer is supposed to want Spain to take charge of his negotiated peace move. Awhile back Spanish Caudillo Franco unquestional would have been willing to act as his spokesman, but not if his back's to the wall, as Caudillo Franco seemingly thinks it is. Pope Pius, too, is suggested as a possible negotiator.

It's presumable that he wants peace. On Adolf's terms, though?

Just what sort of a bargain the Fuehrer has in his bean is problematical.

He seemingly is bent on keeping Germany going as an independent institution—with himself as Fuehrer.

His Fuehrership is the essential consideration.

The nut is—

This war is being fought over 1. Herr Hitler, not Germany.

2. Benito Mussolini, who no longer signifies.

3. The Japs, who still are raising hedges.

It isn't the Germans, who can be disposed of. It isn't the Italians, who are respectable enough, anyway. Basically it's the Japs who have got to be exterminated—not the average Japs, but their military aggregation.

To consolidate 'em—

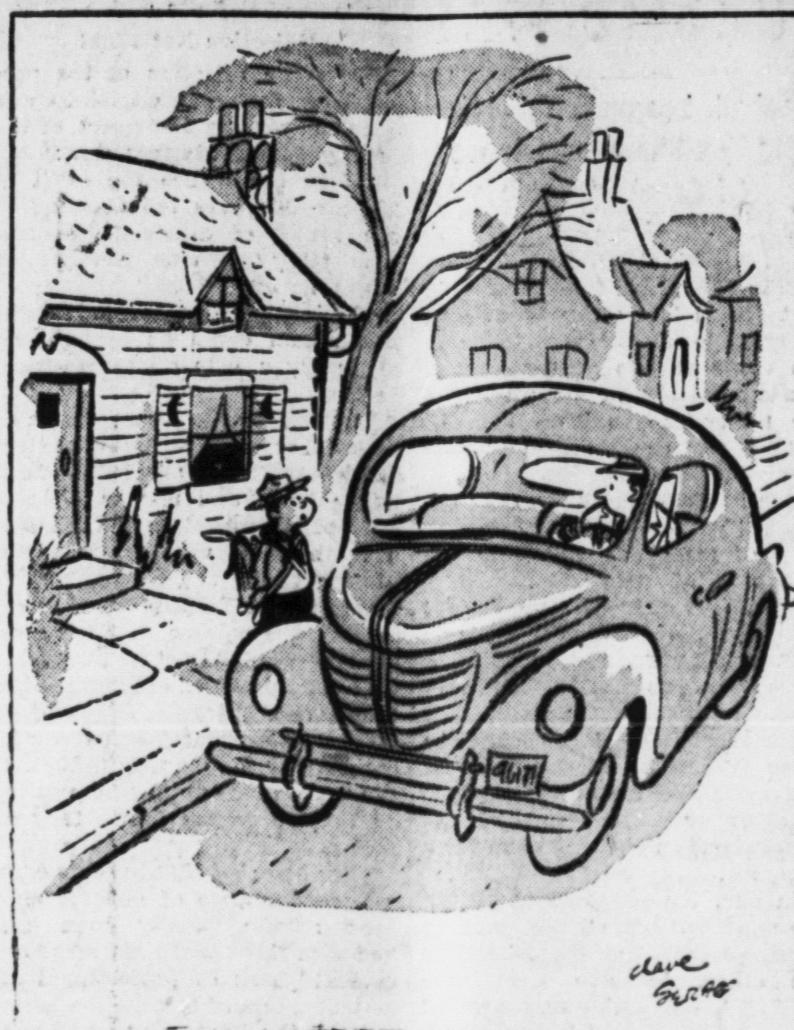

Adolf pretty completely represents all Germany at present.

Benito did, but doesn't now, represent much of Italy.
